

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

NOTE.

In April of this year the management of the American Law Register became involved in financial difficulties and were obliged to stop the publication and make an assignment for the benefit of their creditors. The copyright, subscription list, etc., has passed into the possession of the University of Pennsylvania Press, who have undertaken to furnish the subscribers with the remaining unpublished numbers of the magazine for 1891. This involves the publishing of nine numbers of the magazine, from April to December, inclusive. The late management had on hand at the time of their assignment a considerable amount of matter, which the University of Pennsylvania Press have published in this and the April numbers. All of the nine numbers for 1891 are to be sent to the subscribers before the 15th of January, 1892, thereby making good, as far as in them lies, the promise of the D. B. Canfield Company, Limited. And it will be the endeavor of the present management to supply to the subscribers for the remainder of the year a periodical which shall be in size and in general characteristics similar to that which they have been accustomed to find in the previous numbers of the American Law Register. It is expected that they will be able to send to the subscribers copies of the June, July, August and September numbers within ten days.

With the commencement of the new year the Editorial Management, mentioned in the first page of the April number and of this number, will take entire charge of the Magazine.